Lineage—WILLIAM GREVILLE, of London (son of WILLIAM GREVILLE seated at Campden, co. Gloucester, 21 RICHARD II, and grandson of John Grevill, who d. before 23 EDWARD III), lies interred at Campden. This William was living 21 RICHARD II, as that monarch acknowledges receiving a loan from him and his father of the sum of 300 marks, 10 Aug. 1397. He purchased, in the following year, the manor of Milcote, co. Warwick, from Sir Walter Beauchamp, Kt., and entailed it upon his heir male. He d. 10 Oct. 1401, and was s. by his son,

JOHN GREVILLE, of Campden, Sheriff of co. Glamorgan 6 HENRY IV; m. 1stly, Sibil, dau. and heiress of Sir Robert Corbet; and 2ndly, Joyce, widow of — Beauchamp, and dau. of Sir Walter Cocksey, Kt., sister and heiress of Hugh Cocksey. His grandson,

SIR THOMAS GREVILLE, of Milcote, assumed the name of COCKSEY, upon inheriting the estates of his grandmother's family. He d.s.p. 14 HENRY VII, when Milcote, with the other estates of the Grevilles, devolved upon

JOHN GREVILLE, of Drayton (great-grandson of Lewis Greville, and his wife, Margaret,* sole dau. and heir of Sir Giles Ardene, of Drayton, co. Oxford), one of the justices for the gaol-delivery of Warwick, 15 HENRY VII. He m. Jane, dau. of Sir Humphrey Forster, of Harpedon, co. Oxford, and was s. by his elder son,

SIR EDWARD GREVILLE, of Milcote, a distinguished military character in the reign of HENRY VIII, particularly at the Battle of Spurs 1513. In 1522 Sir Edward Greville obtained the wardship of Elizabeth Willoughby, a great heiress (afterwards wife of his son, Sir Fulke), which wardship tended in a great degree to the subsequent elevation of the family. Sir Edward m. Anne, dau. of John Denton, of Amersden, co. Buckingham, and had, with other issue,

1. JOHN (Sir), of Milcote and Drayton; M.P. for co. Warwick; m. Elizabeth, dau. of John Spencer, of Hodnot, and had an only son, Edward (Sir), of Milcote and Drayton, m. one of the daus. and co-heirs of William Willington, of Barcheston, co. Warwick, and had an only son,
   LODOVICK GREVILLE, who, by his wife, Thomasine, dau. of Sir William Petre, Kt., left an only son,
   EDWARD (Sir), of Milcote and Drayton, m. Joan, dau. of Sir Thomas Bromley, Lord Chancellor of England, and left several daus. Sir Edward, being in debt, sold his whole estate to Lionel Cranfield. Earl of Middlesex, and the elder branch of the Grevilles became extinct.
2. FULKE, of whom we treat.

The 2nd son,

SIR FULKE GREVILLE, Kt., jure uxoris of Beauchamp's Court; High Sheriff 1543; M.P. from 1547; m. ca. 1534, Elizabeth Willoughby, the ward of his father, and the greatest heiress then in England, one of the daus., and at length sole heiress, of Edward Willoughby, only son of Robert, 2nd Lord Willoughby de Broke, and his wife, Elizabeth, one of the daus. and co-heirs of Richard, Lord Beauchamp of Powyk.† The account of this marriage is in a manuscript, entitled The Genealogie, Life, and Death of Robert, Lord Brooke, written 1644, and in the possession of the Earl of Warwick. "In the days of HENRY VIII (says the author of the manuscript), I read of Sir Edward Grevil, of Milcote, who had the wardership of Elizabeth, one of the daus. of the Lord Brooke's son. The knight made a motion to his ward, to be married to John, his eldest son, but she refused, saying, that she did like better of Fulke, his 2nd son. He told her that he had no estate of land to maintain her; and that he was in the king's service of warre beyond the seas, and therefore his return was very doubtful. Shee replied and said, that shee had an estate sufficient both for him and for herself, and that she would pray for his safeties and wait for his coming. Upon his returne home, for the worthy services he had performed, he was, by KING HENRY, honoured with knighthood; and then married Elizabeth, the dau. of the Lord Brooke's son." By this marriage, the manor of Alcester, and many other fair lordships and lands, came in right of his wife to Sir Fulke, who, seating himself at Beauchamp's Court, and augmenting his large estate by the purchase of sundry lands in the neighbourhood, raised his family to high distinction in co. Warwick. By her, who d. 1560, he had with other issue,

1. FULKE (Sir), his successor.
2. ROBERT, of Thorpe Latimer, co. Lincoln, m. Blanche Whitney, and had an only son, ROBERT, 2nd Baron Brooke.

Sir Fulke d. 10 Nov. 1519, and was s. by his eldest son,

* Leland says, "The first notable increase of the landes of Graville of Draiton, cam by one Lewis Graville, who m. Margaret, the dau. and heir of a noble, caulled Syr Giles Ardene."

† Lord Beauchamp of Powyk was descended from Walter de Beauchamp, of Alcester, brother of William, 1st EARL OF WARWICK, of the Beauchamp family; the male line of which family became extinct with HENRY DE BEAUCHAMP, Earl and Duke of Warwick, 1445, when the dukedom became extinct, and the Earldom devolved upon his grace's only dau. and heiress, Anne de Beauchamp, as Countess of Warwick; but her ladyship d. unm., four years later, when her aunt Anne Beauchamp, wife of Richard Neville, son of the Earl of Salisbury, became heiress of the family.

SIR FULKE GREVILLE, of Beauchamp's Court; M.P. for Warwick from 1586; b. 1535; m. ca. 1553, Anne, dau. of 4th Earl of Westmorland, and d. 1606, when he was s. by his only son,

SIR FULKE GREVILLE, 1st Baron Brooke, a man of letters, and a distinguished courtier in the reigns of ELIZABETH and JAMES I, who, at the coronation of the latter Prince, was made a Knight of the Bath, and soon after was called, from being Treasurer of the Navy, to be Chancellor of the Exchequer, and was sworn of the Privy Council. In the 2nd of KING JAMES'S reign he obtained a grant of Warwick Castle, and the gardens and other dependencies about it, and was elevated to the Peerage, 29 Jan. 1620–21, by the title of Lord Brooke, Baron Brooke, of Beauchamp's Court, co. Warwick, with limitation, in default of heirs male of his own body, to his kinsman, Robert Greville, son of Fulke Greville, of Thorpe Latimer, co. Lincoln. His Lordship d. 30 Sept. 1628, and was bur. in his own vault in the great church of Warwick, under a monument which he had erected himself, with this remarkable inscription:

Fulke Greville,
Servant to Queen Elizabeth,

As his Lordship never married, the Barony descended, according to the limitation, to his cousin,

ROBERT GREVILLE, 2nd Baron Brooke, son of Fulke Greville, and grandson of Robert Greville, of Thorpe Latimer (see above), who distinguished himself as a General, in the Parliament Army, during the Civil Wars. He was victorious at Edgehill, Oct. 1642, and the next year was k. by a musket ball in a successful assault upon Lichfield. Note—Like all other English surnames, Wavell has undergone various changes before it settled into its present form. The variants of the name can all be traced to an origin in the village of Vauville which stands on the bay of the same name in the western portion of the Cherbourg peninsula. The Seigneurs of Vauville were a younger branch of the Barons of Briquebec who like many other of the ruling caste in Normandy were descended from the old Norse stock. A William de Vauville or Wavilla is mentioned in charters both in Normandy and England in the 11th century, and in the reign of JOHN, Sir Richard de Vauville (Wauvill), settled in Sussex and during the period 1200–1400 the Wavells are to be found in Sussex, Bedfordshire and Somerset for the most part as the holders of Knights' fees. At the close of the Middle Ages the family was settled in the Isle of Wight. For a full account of the origin and various branches of the family see The House of Wavell (British Museum), by L. G. Pine compiled from material supplied by Mr. G. E. Wavell.

Lineage—WALTER DE WEDDERBURN swore fealty to EDWARD I of England at Berwick-on-Tweed, 28 Aug. 1296 (Ragman Roll), while references are also found to JOHN DE WEDIRBURN (bearing the same arms as the present family) in 1364, WILLIAM DE WEDDERBURN in 1375, 1407 and 1426-52, and others of the name, in the border country. The lands of Wedderburn, co. Berwick, however, passed at an early date (probably by marriage with an heiress) to a branch of the powerful family of Home, and have ever since remained with the Homes of Wedderburn (see BURKE'S L.G., MILNE-HOME), from whom descended the Earls of Dunbar and Marchmont, while contemporary with the decline of the Wedderburns in the south of Scotland we find an influential family of the name in the county of Forfar. Thus, in about 1400, four distinct, but closely connected, branches of this family, are found in Dundee. Of these, one was that of JAMES WEDDERBURN and Janet Barry, three of whose sons, James, John and Robert, were among the earliest Scottish reformers, all having united to produce the famous Gude and Godlie Ballates, or Wedderburn Psalms, while Robert, sometime Vicar of Dundee, was, with little doubt, the author of the remarkable Complaynt of Scotland. From the eldest of these brothers descended JAMES WEDDERBURN, Bishop of Dunblane, who, as the friend of Archbishop Laud, and a staunch episcopalian, was driven from Scotland 1638, and retired to Canterbury, where he died 1639, and was buried in the cathedral there. His elder brother John settled as a physician in Moravia, and left issue, whose descendants are believed to be still flourishing on the Continent under the name of Wetterborn. Two other Dundee families were those of WALTER WEDDERBURN, in Welgait, father of Alexander Wedderburn, of Pittormie, co. Fife, and DAVID WEDDERBURN, in the Murraygait, father of David of Craigie, who m. Helen Lawson, and had issue. Both of these families are, however, now believed to be extinct in male line. The fourth and most important family, long eminent in Dundee, sprang from
ROBERT WEDDERBURN, m. Janet, dau. of David Froster in Methven, and d. ca. 1518, leaving issue,
1. James, who represented Dundee in Parliament 1540, d. 1544, leaving issue, two sons.

The eldest son,

Forfar; b. 1561, was high in favour with JAMES VI, accompanied him to England 1603, and was one of the signatories to the Treaty for a Union between Scotland and England 1604. On his return to Scotland the following year, His Majesty presented him with a ring off his own finger, still preserved in the family. He was b. 1561; m. 1582, Helen, dau. of Alexander Ramsay, and d. 1626, leaving,
1. Alexander, of Kingennie, Clerk of Dundee 1627–33, whose lineal male descendant obtained a Crown Charter 1708, erecting the lands of Easter Powrie into a Barony, to be called Wedderburn. This branch of the family, however, became extinct in the male line on the death of David Wedderburn of Wedderburn 1761, when the male representation of the family devolved on the ancestor of the present Baronet; but the estates were inherited by the heir of line, now represented by Henry James Scrymgeour-Wedderburn, of Wedderburn and Birkhill, Hereditary Royal Standard Bearer of Scotland (see BURKE'S L.G.).

Kildare and Louth. His Lordship was subsequently summoned to Parliament 1498, but failing to appear, he was fined forty shillings for non-attendance. In 1504, Lord Delvin accompanied the Earl of Kildare to the famous battle of Knocktough in Connaught, and was the first to throw a spear into the ranks of the Irish, by which he chanced to kill one of the Burkes. In 1527, he was nominated Lord Deputy of Ireland, and conducted the public affairs with integrity and honour, until treacherously taken prisoner by O'Connor. That native chieftain having made inroads upon the confines of the Pale, 1528, Lord Delvin ordered the detention of a yearly rent due to him out of certain carucates of lands in co. Meath; which procedure led to a conference at the castle of Rathin, belonging to Sir William d'Arcie, when by stratagem the Lord Deputy was seized and detained prisoner, many of his attendants being slain, wounded and taken. Walter Wellesley, of Dangan Castle, and Sir Walter Delahide, of Moyclare, were subsequently deputed to expostulate with O'Connor, and to procure his Lordship's liberation, but ineffectually, when another Lord Deputy was apptd. to administer the Government, and Lord Delvin remained in confinement until O'Connor's pension was restored. In 1588, he obtained a grant of the priory of Foure, co. Westmeath, and being, in 1593, apptd. by commission leader of the forces raised in co. Westmeath at the general hosting on the hill of Tara, he brought with the Nugents, his kinsmen, twenty horsemen thither; and so acceptable were his services to QUEEN ELIZABETH, that, by Privy Seal, 7 May, 1597, she ordered him a grant in fee-farm of so many manors and forfeited lands in cos. Cavan and Longford at his election as should amount to the Crown rent of 100*l.* a year English. Of the 1st Duke, Burnet says, "This year (1699) died the Marquis of Winchester, whom the King had created Duke of Bolton. He was a man of a strange mixture. He had the spleen to an high degree, and affected an extravagant behaviour; for many weeks he would not open his mouth till such an hour of the day when he thought the air was pure. He changed the day into night, and often hunted by torchlight, and took all sorts of liberties to himself, many of which were very disagreeable to those about him. He was a man of profuse expense, and of almost ravenous avarice to support that; and though he was much hated, yet he carried matters before him with such authority and success, that he was in all respects the great riddle of the age." This last Monarch, the descendant of a long line of regal ancestors, succeeded to the Crown of Powys, on the demise, 843, of his father, Mervyn Vrych, King of Powys, and by inheritance and marriage acquired the kingdoms of North Wales and South Wales. IAGO AP IDWAL, excluded from the throne by Llewelyn ap Seisyllt, husband of Angharad, Queen of Powys, was restored 1021, on the decease of that prince. Iago ap Idwal, who was slain 1037, in a battle fought between him and Griffith, King of Powys, son of Llewelyn ap Seisyllt, left an only son,

SPIRITUAL  LORDS.

Archbishops and Bishops being Diocesans, bear the arms of their Sees impaled with their own family arms, without crest or motto, and with a mitre over the shield; while all other Bishops bear their family arms only, with a mitre over the shield. The mitre of both Archbishops and Bishops is (with the exception of that of the Bishop of Durham) exactly the same. It is a high golden cap, enriched with jewels, pointed and divided at the top, with fringed pendants hanging from the lower part; each top is surmounted by a cross, the present usual form of the cross being that of a cross-pattée. The mitre of the Bishop of Durham differs from that of the other Prelates in being encircled with a ducal coronet. As to the designation and rank of Archbishops and Bishops, see INTRODUCTION.

The Archbishops of Canterbury and York, and the Bishops of London, Durham and Winchester always sit in the House of Lords.

The Editor has not given all the Bishops of the Established Church of England, but only those who are actually sitting in the House of Lords, at the time of going to Press.

THE MALTESE NOBILITY.

The Nobility of Malta, as at present constituted, was founded by Count Roger the Norman, A.D. 1090, who after expelling the Arabs, classified the population into Barons, Nobles, Knights, Citizens, Burgesses, and Rustics, and conferred several fiefs on the most distinguished amongst his followers. From that date Malta continued to form part of the Sicilian Monarchy, and the Aragonese Kings of Sicily augmented the Nobility by no less than thirty new creations, of which some are now extinct or have been revived in favour of descendants in the female line. In 1530 the Emperor Charles V granted the Island to the Knights of Saint John of Jerusalem, after their loss of Rhodes. In Malta, not only was the Governorship of the Island, before the advent of the Knights, almost hereditary in the family of Inguanez, Barons of Diar-il-Bniet and Bukana, and the Keepership of the Castle of St. Angelo strictly hereditary in that of Nava, Barons of Marsa; but the Governor of Gozo, the Vice-Admiral, the Segreto or Administrator of Government property, the Jurats (Municipal Senators), the Commanders of various Regiments, etc. were all Noblemen who kept both horse and foot soldiers and several war galleys at their own expense. They were moreover invested with the chief military commands together with all executive and judicial authority, and had an hereditary right to sit in the Consiglio Popolare or Local Parliament. When Grand Master L'Isle Adam took possession of the Island in November, 1530, the Nobles received him on horseback at the gate of the City, and he swore to preserve the rights and privileges of the Maltese. His successors repeated the same ceremony each time they were elected to the supreme rule of the Order and the Island, and they augmented the ranks of the Nobility by several new creations. All the chief offices were in their hands. When England took possession of the Island, 5 Sept. 1800, not by conquest, but at the special request of the Maltese, who were the conquerors of the French invaders, both Sir Alexander Ball and Commissioner Cameron in the name of KING GEORGE III and his successors, promised that the "law, rights, privileges and religion" of the Maltese should be maintained. The Nobles of Malta are officially addressed as Most Noble, while their eldest sons enjoy the courtesy title of Marchesino, Contino or Baroncino, and the younger sons and daughters are styled dei Marchesi, dei Conti or dei Baroni according to the title which ennobles the family. The title holders take precedence among themselves according to date of creation, and are received at Court in similar manner to the Peers and Peeresses of Great Britain and Ireland. The number of Maltese titles is 29, comprising 9 Marquisates, 10 Countships and 10 Baronies.

We have been unable to include more than a few illustrations of the arms used by the Maltese nobility as it has been impossible to obtain the necessary information as to arms, and the blazons of the arms which are actually in use. It is understood that when Malta was conquered by Napoleon, every coat of arms which he could find on public or private buildings was defaced by his orders, and the noble families of Malta were compelled by him to surrender their original patents of nobility, to be burnt in the Palace Square in the midst of Valletta. In consequence of this, very little information regarding the ancient deeds and titles of nobility is now available.

[As certified by the College of Arms, 6 May, 1809, Count de Salis is entitled to quarter the arms of Fane, Neville, Beauchamp and Le Despencer which have devolved upon him in virtue of descent from Mary, Countess de Salis, the elder of the two sisters and co-heirs of the last Lord Fane. Count de Salis also quarters the arms of Drake as heir general of the family of the great Sir Francis. The Royal Licence dated 5 Dec. 1835, was granted to Jerome, Count de Salis, as owner of estates in Ireland derived from the Fane family, to assume the surname of Fane; some members of the family avail themselves of the permission.]

Lineage—At the close of the 13th century the family was established at Soglio on the southern border of the Grisons. The first member from whom a continuous descent can be derived is Rodolph, described as of Soglio and dead before April, 1300, whose connection can only be presumed or suggested with any earlier bearers of the name, such as Gilbert or Gubert, 4th Grand Master of the Knights of St. John in 1169, and Andreas, said to have been with the Emperor Frederick Barbarossa in Palestine in 1176, or, with greater probability, John, signatory of the treaty concluded 17 Aug. 1219, at Piuro near Soglio between the adherents of the bishops of Coire and of Como.

By degrees, the family spread to the northern valleys of the Grisons, ultimately exercising a dominating influence in that state till the loss of its dependencies in the wars of the French Revolution and its final incorporation in 1815 in the Swiss Confederation. The title of Baron of the Empire was conferred, 12 May, 1582, by the Emperor Rudolph II upon Rudolph de Salis, who had distinguished himself in the command of the Imperial forces arrayed against the Turks. Four other patents of nobility were, at subsequent dates, conferred upon members of the house.

PETER DE SALIS, of Soglio, 1st COUNT DE SALIS, Seigneur of the Imperial fiefs of Oberaich and Engishhofen, Envoy of the Grisons to QUEEN ANNE, visited England in 1709, while attending the Congress at Utrecht. Lineage—THOMAS DIMSDALE, 1ST BARON DIMSDALE, M.D., of The Priory, co. Hertford, member for the borough of Hertford in two successive Parliaments, was grandson of Robert Dimsdale, who accompanied William Penn to America in 1684, and 4th son of Sir John Dimsdale, Kt., of Theydon Gernon, Essex, by Susanna, dau. of Thomas Bowyer, of Albury Hall, co. Hertford. Dr. Dimsdale, in 1745, made a voluntary and gratuitous offer of his services as assistant to the medical staff of the Army sent to the north, under the cmd. of H.R.H. the DUKE OF CUMBERLAND, to suppress the Scottish rebellion; and he continued in the service until after the surrender of Carlisle to the King's forces, when he received the thanks of H.R.H. the Commander-in-Chief. His high reputation in the art of inoculating for the small-pox having reached the Empress CATHERINE of Russia, he was especially invited, 1762, to the Court of St. Petersburg, for the purpose of inoculating The Empress and the Grand Duke, her son. He was rewarded with the appmt. of Councillor of State, and Physician to Her Imperial Majesty, with an annuity of £500 per annum, conferring upon him, by letters patent at St. Petersburg 13 Feb. 1769, a Barony of the Russian empire, with the title of "Honourable" attached, to be borne by him and the eldest of his lawful descendants in succession. She likewise gave him the sum of £10,000 sterling, with £2,000 for the expenses of his journey, and presented him with a miniature of herself and the Grand Duke, richly set with diamonds. His 2nd son, Nathaniel, who had accompanied him to the Russian Court, had conferred upon him, at the same time, a similar dignity, with similar limitations. Her Imperial Majesty was further pleased to grant to both father and son, and their lawful descendants, permission to add to their family arms, a wing of the displayed black eagle of the Russian imperial coat, on a gold shield placed in the centre, with the usual helmet over the shield, surmounted by the Baron's coronet.
